A lake is a large body of water within a body of land. As a lake is separated from the ocean, it is not a sea. Some lakes are very big, and people in the past sometimes called them seas. Lakes do not flow like rivers, but many have rivers flowing into and out of them.

Most lakes on the surface of the Earth are fresh water and most are in the Northern Hemisphere.

Many lakes are man-made reservoirs built to produce electricity, for recreation, or to use the water for irrigation or industry, or in houses. Where the water evaporates rapidly and the soil around the lake has a high salt level, as in very dry places, the water of the lake has a high concentration of salt and the lake is called a salt lake. Examples of salt lakes are the Great Salt Lake, the Caspian Sea, the Aral Sea, and the Dead Sea.

Snow is a form of ice. Snow forms when water in the atmosphere becomes frozen. Snow comes in all different shapes and sizes.

Snow is used for some winter sport activities like skiing and sledding. Sometimes people make artificial snow so they can ski. People also commonly build things out of snow for fun.

Snow can also be dangerous, as it can lower visibility and make driving very difficult. When it snows, the snow will melt a little during the daytime and freeze again at night. This makes ice which can make driving conditions very treacherous. Snow plows are used to remove snow from roads to make driving easier and safer. Also, sand or salt may be added to the road to help tires grip the road. When salt is mixed with snow, the snow will melt more easily. This is because salt water has a lower melting point than fresh water.

Wind is the flow of gases. On Earth, wind is mostly the movement of air. In outer space, solar wind is the movement of gases or particles from the sun through space. The strongest winds seen on a planet in our solar system are on Neptune and Saturn. Wind can move land, especially in deserts. Cold wind can sometimes have a bad effect on livestock. Wind also affects animals' food stores, their hunting and the way they protect themselves.

Wind can also be caused by the rising of hot air, or the falling of cool air. When hot air rises, it creates a low pressure underneath it, and air moves in to equalize the pressure. When cold air drops, it creates a high pressure, and flows out to even out the pressure with the low pressure around it. The wind is usually invisible, but rain, dust, or snow can show how it is blowing.

ТЕСТ 1

Now we are ready to start.

Presenter: Hello, everybody, and welcome to our daily programme Friends in Need. Let's have our next caller. Who's on the line?

Mike: Hi Jessica, it's Mike here.

Presenter: Hi Mike. How can I help you, Mike?

Mike: Well, you know, I have a problem. It's my best friend, Alex. We've been friends for years — since we went to school — and we always used to do everything together. We played tennis, went to the cinema, skipped school — we did everything together. But recently, in the last few months, something has changed. It's like he doesn't want to be friends anymore.

Presenter: Oh, such a misfortune. Maybe you've done something wrong...

Mike: No, no. These days he just seems to be very busy doing other things.

Presenter: How old are you, Mike?

Mike: Sixteen.

Presenter: And your friend Alex is too, I suppose.

Mike: Well, actually, no. He is one year older than me. This year Alex is going to have final exams. It's not like I'm really keen on studies, but he is.

Presenter: Well, have you tried to talk to him?

Mike: Actually, I have. But he says that I'm being ridiculous, which means we're still friends.

Presenter: But it doesn't feel right, yeah?

Mike: Well, you are right. Also, Alex is on our school football team. Well, that sport is something I'm not very good at.

Presenter: So, Mike, friendships change as people grow up. If he doesn't have time for you, you have to accept that. Do you enjoy spending time with your family?

Mike: Well, of course. But it's not the same thing! I actually wanted to make sure that he wasn't too... Oh, I feel so uncomfortable. Is it normal for a teenager?

Presenter: Yes, but things can't always stay the same. I'm not saying you should stop being friends with him. But you should stop expecting to see so much of him.

Mike: Okay, I got you. You can't always be comfortable because then you won't grow as a person. Thanks, Jessica.

Presenter: You're welcome!

You have 15 seconds to complete the task. (Pause 15 seconds.)

Now you will hear the text again. (Repeat.)

This is the end of the task. You now have 15 seconds to check your answers. (Pause 15 seconds.)

This is the end of the Listening test.

Время, отведённое на выполнение заданий, истекло.

TEXT 2

Now we are ready to start.

Mark: So, Paula, what do you think about the film?

Paula: Well, Mark, when you suggested going to the cinema...

Mark: Oh, sure, let's blame me!

Paula: Come on, stop it. I agreed to come, but frankly speaking it's just not my kind of genre. However, it turned out pretty well, I loved it.

Mark: That's a relief, then. It seemed that you didn't like the plot.

Paula: Well, actually, I'd forgotten to eat before we went, so I kept wanting it to end.

Mark: Very silly of you, Paula.

Paula: I know. Anyway, it stopped me concentrating properly — the film seemed to go on too long.

Mark: It's true it was long, but that's the key. This movie needed to be long, I guess.

Paula: Oh yes, maybe you are right. I think the setting of the film was good. To be honest, Mark, there was one thing that made me crazy.

- Mark: What's wrong this time? As for me, I enjoyed every moment of watching it.
- Paula: I did read the book a few days ago and I loved it. When I read about the past I feel I can understand the present better and appreciate it more... And the movie just oversimplified that.
- Mark: That sounds interesting. Well, my brother bought this book a year ago, but I never opened it. Usually, I read a lot for pleasure, but I didn't have enough time.
- Paula: You are lucky! Well, being the only child in our family, I had to buy books all by myself. So, do try it.
- Mark: OK, maybe I will. A lot of my friends would say it sounds as if you're trying to sell your copy.
- Paula: Oh, come on. You should like it, really.
- Mark: Thank you, Paula. I'll let you know about my impressions when I finish reading it.
- Paula: Okay. Well, I have to go. Call me soon!
- Mark: Okay. Bye!

ТЕСТ 3

Now we are ready to start.

- Megan: John, I'm thinking of going to a language school in Russia during the summer. Do you know any good ones?
- John: Well, Megan, I know one school in Moscow. It's very good. All the students are teenagers, so that's perfect for you. It's not very expensive, by the way.
- Megan: Great! How long do you think I should go for? It's my first trip to Russia.
- John: Well, I know they have courses which last two or three weeks. If you can go over there for three weeks, it will do. You will probably learn all you need to know about Russian grammar.
- Megan: It would be nice. Did you study there?

- John: Well, actually, I didn't, but my cousin was there last summer. She absolutely loved it! As for me, that summer I was in Saint Petersburg, Russia's second-largest city.
- Megan: Wow! Well, what was it like? I'm sure you must have tons of pictures on your Facebook page.
- John: Of course! The Hermitage Museum is the greatest attraction. But I still don't know the language.
- Megan: Me neither. Well, could you give me more details about that school in Moscow?
- John: I don't quite remember. I know for sure they have a very good school timetable. There are lots of activities, so you won't get bored.
- Megan: How many lessons are there a day?
- John: Usually, you have four lessons in the morning. You may go on excursions later.
- Megan: Oh, really? I dreamt of visiting the legendary Bolshoi Theatre. Maybe I will take a package tour.
- John: You are right, this is a great idea. Moscow is really worth visiting, people from all over the world come to witness Moscow splendours. Send me a friend request on Facebook, please. I'll share some videos with you.
- Megan: Oh, great. By the way, I've heard that Russia hosts the 2018 FIFA World Cup.
- John: Yes. It is scheduled to take place in Russia from the 14th of June to the 15th of July 2018. I've already booked the tickets.
- Megan: Really? Well, I'm not a football fan. Look, my dad's calling. See you!
- John: Bye.
